

CRIMINAL COURTS.

COURT OF SPECIAL SESSIONS.

(Before Justice Kelly and Downing.)

A short calendar, with two experienced Justices to try it, made on Saturday rather a brief morning's work. There were, however, one or two cases of sufficient importance to require the list from its own character of level, uninteresting economy. The list of all cases posted up was 30, which were thus classified: Assault and battery, 16; petit larceny, 15, grand, 1; suspended cases, 4—total, 30.

ONE PAIR OF SHOES FOR TWO MRS.—A well-dressed, intelligent young man named William Delaney was brought up on the charge, preferred by Peter Raymond, of stealing a pair of gloves. The complainant, a slender, dark-haired youth, had lost weight, the slender, and was in a trim condition; his place was destined to look at some fine feathers. While examining them they managed to abstract one pair, with whom they absconded. Mr. Raymond at once missed his goods, and raising the cry: "Stop thief!" started in rapid pursuit. The pursuer, however, was not so fortunate as to catch him, but found Delaney in view and followed him closely. The cry of "Tie!" reached the ear of a policeman, who was at the time in his own house eating his dinner, but who at once dismissed all thoughts of home and thoughts and joined in the chase. Delaney, finding himself surrounded, ran away, the doves of his innocence, and was apprehended by the officer on the landing of the second flight of stairs, with the shoes under his arm. As the officer was taking the thief down stairs he attempted to get rid of the anchorage by dropping it over the banisters, but was saved in the act. Delaney was sent to the Penitentiary one month.

A GERMAN VOCALIST SINGING IRISH MUSIC.—Alexander Bets was charged with beating John Beck. In explanation, Beck said that they live, one in the front house, the other in the rear house, on the same lot, and the two places have a common court-yard. Alexander was in this yard, singing a popular Irish song known as "Pat Muller," which Bets resented, and ordered Alexander to stop. The singer, however, continued to sing, and the plaintiff and his wife, who was the mother of ten children, and the defendant and his wife, who was the mother of nine, got into a dispute, and the wife of the defendant, who was the doves of her innocence, was sent to the Penitentiary one month.

The will further contained this clause: "It is my will, and I do order that my estate shall not be left after paying the debts of my estate, and the expenses of my funeral, and the hands of my executors or under their control, on the use of my wife and children while under age, and after my youngest child shall have arrived at the age of 21 years, my will is to direct that my wife and children, and my husband, and my son, who is of age, shall be divided equally among my said children, male and female, share and share alike, excepting the right of my wife, Eliza Valentine, before mentioned."
